

Leeds Arts University Academic Integrity Statement

In confirming your acceptance of this statement, you confirm you have understood the University's Academic Regulations with regard to academic misconduct and accept the penalties that may result if you are found to have committed academic misconduct.

Leeds Arts University relies on academic integrity and responsibility as a cornerstone of its intellectual community. All students of the University are expected to exhibit the highest levels of personal and academic honesty and to respect the intellectual property of others.

This means that all work you submit for assessment must be your own and not that of another student or scholar, or reproduced without attribution from the internet or other source. If you do use, or refer, to the work of another person this must be properly attributed and referenced according to the University's guidelines.

Use of Artificial Intelligence (AI)

The University's approach to the use of AI in learning and teaching environments is evolving, and we are exploring how we can incorporate AI tools into these environments. We are aware that AI has the potential to enrich students' academic experience. However, as assessments, unless specifically referenced, have not been designed with AI tools in mind, making use of them without a recognised rationale is unlikely to enable you to meet the intended learning outcomes, and would affect the value of your degree/qualification. We expect you not to use AI in the generation of any of your assessed work without fully acknowledging and referencing its use in line with the University's guidelines and regulations.

Leeds Arts University

June 2023

Note: The University reserves the right to update this statement at any time, in-line with developments in the academic integrity field.